

People for Successful COrEAN REunification

Dear friends and partners of PSCORE,

We have great news to announce: Over 10 years PSCORE has been working hard to support North Korean defectors and just finished campaigning again at Gwanghamun! Our fight for human rights never ends and we achieved another milestone this month. We just added the finishing touches to our report on Child Labour and in addition our newest info-packed booklet about the reign of Kim Jong Un has been published!

Furthermore, we want you to meet our defectors! The new online funding campaign has just started and focuses on the individual stories of defectors we support. Please read about their experiences - you can contribute to make the lives of our defectors brighter. We can't do this without your support!

Thank you for your continuous interest in our activities.

Sincerely,

People for Successful COrEAN REunification (PSCORE)

EVENTS

Street Campaign

PSCORE did a Street Campaign at the Gwanghwamun Square from November 20th - 25th, 2017. Although weather conditions gave our team hard time, this year's last street campaign has ended on a successful note. We thank everyone who took part in the campaign by donating, getting our books and answering the questions on the sticky note board. We were happy to get such a good response from both Korean and international crowd, and hopefully our questions prompted people to reconsider the picture they have of North Korea, or made them appreciate more the freedom people in democratic countries have. Hopefully we can organize more events like this in the future!

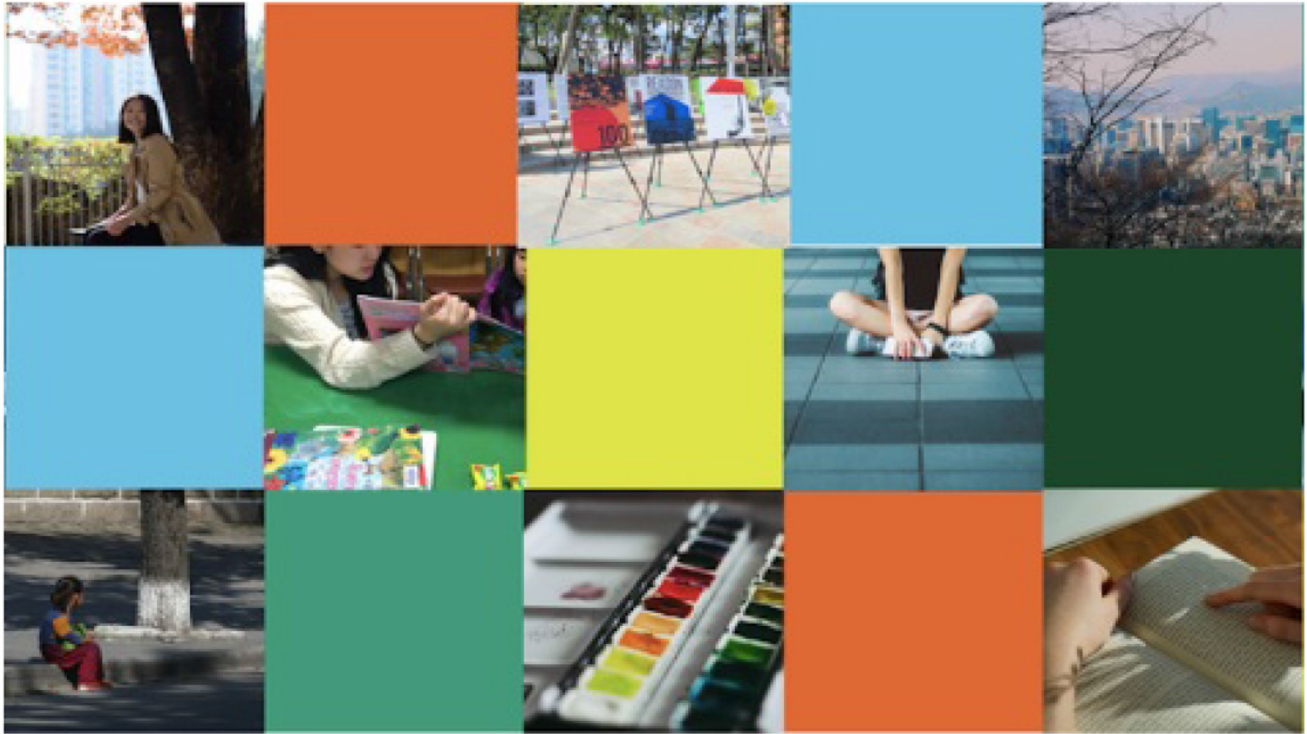

Child Labor Report

We are currently finishing writing a report called “Unending Toil: Child Labor within North Korea,” which addresses the prevalence of child labor in North Korea. Countless accounts from North Korean defectors and current research reveal that the issue of child labor is not simply a singular, unusual case or a corrupt deal between individuals, but an institutionalized form of child exploitation. PSCORE seeks to incriminate the North Korean regime for serious labor exploitation and repressive social structures of child labor. All North Korean defectors we interviewed have testified that they experienced child labor, regardless of class status. Through publishing this report, we hope that the children of North Korea will enjoy guaranteed, basic human rights, and have a healthy childhood.

The report is almost done and we will announce the publishing date soon.

Meet Our Defectors

Dear friends and partners of PSCORE,

PSCORE is now fundraising for young North Korean individuals who face trouble in their integration process in South Korea.

As individuals, we all aim at belonging either to a part of the world, to a certain group of people, to an ideology or religion. Would you imagine living and trying to integrate yourself in a society where you feel completely left out?

In today's globalised world, North Korean refugees who managed to come in South Korea, full of dreams and wishes, are often faced with difficulties they did not expect.

Indeed, North Korean defectors have to face difficulties with integration, isolation, discrimination, academic difficulties, issues with socialising, as well as language barriers.

Would you like to contribute giving these individuals a possibility to start a new and successful life in South Korea?
